BRINGS STORI

(From Monday's Advertiser.) Honolulu yesterday received the first warship of the new era of Pacific naval history. The protected cruiser Raleigh, Commander Peters, arrived off port from Yokohama about the middle of the forenoon and at 1:30 o'clock she was alongside the Naval wharf with her guards out to keep off curious folks who were anxious to get a look at her graceful lines and warlike aspect. It seemed hard for Honelulu people, who have been hearing of the coming of vessels of war for so long a time, to be kept T. K. K. S. S. Hongkong Maru, Fil- from the wharf, but such was the case. The most strict quarantine was observed in regard to the Raleigh and last night none of her three hundred men were allowed even half way up the long wharf, nor was anybody from ashore allowed aboard. At sunset the order was given to close the gates opening from the wharf on to the esplanade. Today the officers and some Str. Ke Au Hou, Tullett, for Kauai of the men may be allowed ashore.

The Raleigh is homeward bound as any one could have seen by a look at the long pennant she flew when she was off the harbor, a pennant whose end ever and anon touched the water

Japan in the war with Russia delivered a telling blow before war was declared. Such a move could not have been accomplished if there had been any coming to blows between Japan and the United States. Uncle Sam was ready, not only to deliver a defensive blow, but to make a most aggressive move in the event of the Japanese government not being able to contain itself.

These are the things one hears from Per str. Claudine, August 23, for Maul the men of the Raleigh, not from the officers. The officers are not talking.
